Hello! I am a 55-year-old student enrolled in the Addiction Counseling Certification program, hoping to obtain my CADAC upon completion. My past work history mostly involves medical transcription (25 years). Addiction/substance abuse counseling has always been an interest of mine. I decided 4-5 years ago that transcription was just not for me any longer and chose to look into the recovery community for possible entry-level positions. Wellspring hired me and I have been with their program (Women's House initially and now Infinity House presently) for the majority of the last 4-5 years, taking a little over a year off to do volunteer driving for Penquis CAP during that timeframe.

I feel confident working in and around computers regarding Word; however, not much beyond that. I have fear of getting lost in class and falling behind once we start getting into uncharted territory but my goal is to ask for help when needed and finish this class with the skills to accomplish whatever may come my way in future career positions.

I live in Hermon with my boyfriend, my dog and 2 cats. I have 2 grown children and 2 beautiful granddaughters. I am excited for this new journey!
