

Antoine Bowleg

-Loops are a way to repeat a set of operations. Some examples can include for and while.

-You will have to use while if you are unsure on how many times you are looping or no given loop variable.

-Curly braces are not needed if only looping a single line of code.

-A for loop is one that performs a limited amount of times. You can use for when number of loops are known or obvious variable.