

Who am I?

Who I am has always been a hard question for me to answer. Who I am is a lot to explain. Some people only get to know a certain side of me. One person might see one thing while someone else sees something totally different. Not saying I'm faking who I am or am I putting up a front. I just will always protect my peace and happiness from bad energy at all cost. Overall I am still the same caring and loving individual and I want to tell you what's in my bag so you can understand who I am a little more.

The first item that is in my bag is a cross that represents my religion and my love for God. I can't brag about my love for God because I can fail him daily, but I can brag about his love for me because he never fails me. He never let me down even if I begin to stray away. I will be nothing without God in my life and I always try to keep him close.

The next item in my bag is my cell phone. My cell phone is always with me whether it's for texting, on the phone with friends, or social media. If I happened to leave my phone at home I will just feel so naked without it. It can get really addicting sometimes which is something I should probably work on.

Thirdly, in my bag I have perfume. I am absolutely obsessed with self-care and I love to smell good. Ask anybody who is normally around me and they will tell you I always smell good. Being told I smell good is one of the best compliments I can get. I have so much perfume and I'm always buying more when I get the chance.

The fourth item in my bag is a bag of chips. Anybody who knows me know that I love to eat. Food just makes me happy in so many ways. I almost never turn down a meal or an opportunity to get food unless I'm not in the mood. I most definitely need to start eating more healthier foods, but I will always be a foodie.

The last item in my bag is hand sanitizer. This item represents how clean of a person I am. Some people tell me I am a clean freak but that's just how I am. I don't like filth or disorganization. I'm always cleaning and sanitizing at home because that's just the type of environment I like to be in. My cleanliness, including my hygiene is something I take lots of pride in.

Conclusion, I am far from perfect but everything about me makes me who I am, flaws and all. I don't want anybody in my life that doesn't love me or wants me to change who I am. I worked so hard to love myself the way I do now. So never again will let someone belittle me or make me feel like I'm not good enough. I am proud of the woman that I become, and I strive to be better.
