

All About Me

I'm a little late on the completion of this assignment to write a seven-paragraph speech about myself. However, I'm a very interesting person and would love to tell you what I have learned about myself. Included in this assignment is the request to find tangible items that represent our character traits. These items should be put into a brown paper bag and used as show and tell when introducing myself during class. I knew this would be an exciting activity and I hate that I am behind with it. So today, I am going to catch up to the speed of things and share with your things that I have found about myself including five character traits.

The first item in my bag is a pacifier. I chose the pacifier, because it tells about my growing family. My youngest out of two daughters is two months old and requires a lot of on demand attention. I have a seven-year-old as well and she is about to try virtual school for the first time. With that being said, we have a very busy daily lifestyle and I love it. I try my best to be a good leader for my girls, guiding them to be smart respectful young ladies. My daughters have a very tight bond which is very important, because they have to be supportive of each other. I have peace when I'm with my children.

The next item that I have in my bag is a plane ticket. A plane ticket is detailed with information, also my receipt of travel. I love to travel. Flights to different cities and countries teaches me different culture, food, and beliefs. You can learn so much when you travel, visit new places, and meet new people. I can adapt to pretty much anything and socialize with different people.

Thirdly, I have nude lipstick. I went with nude because it's very simple. I am a simple person and I think simple is always best. In any situation I keep things simple, calm, and sensible. When it comes to the way I dress, I like simple. I don't like to over dress or dress dramatic. When it comes to décor, I like that simple too. Expensive décor of course, but nice and simple.

The fourth item is an Ace of Spade Card. The only one in the deck of cards. I am one of a kind. I am very loyal and confident in myself. I expect how I treat others to treat me the same, if not then I don't deal with them at all. I speak how I feel when something is bothering me and when something makes me feel great. I try my best to be transparent with people.

Fifth, and probably most important... I have a key. I am constantly trying to unlock many doors. Every time I complete something, I look for something else to do. Setting goals daily to stay consistent with a challenge keeps me motivated. I'm thankful to have the drive that I do and never the energy to give up. I have the key to any door that I want to open.

In conclusion, I am a unique person with a warm spirit. I have a lot on my plate, but it is everything that I asked for. I handle my full plate simply with prioritizing and setting goals to meet. My friends and family love me and support anything that I want to do. They value our relationship and respect my drive.
