

What I enjoyed about the interview is how they asked her different questions about HBCU'S and how she was able to answer with great understanding answers. I say the culture that she speaks on how HBCU is design for our culture that is why it is good for more black kids. HBCU'S built this country and the fact that HBCU educated most doctors, lawyers, engineer's and teachers. What I can do to tell people how good benedict is that it is very family oriented. To get people to go to any HBCU is the fun and you get a great education and you will learn more about your history.
