The Planful Decision Strategy

1. The problem is that Rhonda family doesn't have sufficient funds to send her to law school.
2. Rhonda values her family's close and supportive relationship, her dreams are to go to Law School to gain a degree in political science, which is her dream that erupted in high school to get involved in the political arena; and Rhonda's hope was to have the city council approve their request for a red light installation.
3. Rhonda has leadership values (displayed by her starting an AAC), her talent was reviewed in one instance; in the case where she passed classes even though she had difficulty, and her interest besides going to law school is to be involved in the political field.
4. As it stands presently, Rhonda would assume that she has no other option than to attend nursing school, but Rhonda should collect information about scholarships and then mention a decision at that point.
- 5.

Alternative 1: Go To Nursing School First
Pros: work and save money to attend law school	Cons: length of time increased before attending law school
Alternative 2: Go To Law School After Pros: after attending nursing school, use the money you accumulate from employment to pay for law school	Cons: since 4yrs has passed you may lose the desire to attend law school.
Alternative 3: Enroll Nursing School/ Law School Basic Classes Online. Pros: accomplish one goal using to routes	Cons: will have to sacrifice a lot more hours to studying and isolation from going out with friends

6. If I was Rhonda, I would not allow financial limitations to block me from accomplishing my goals and gaining my hearts' desire. I would apply for multi scholarships and confidently believe that people would invest in me; to make my dream a reality. Even if the scholars are slow in responding; I'll enroll online and get closer with each course. Because, if I didn't try every option in my power; I would then live in regret and an unfulfilled life from the inside. I also would repeatedly wonder, "what if'", if I didn't even try.
