

Donald Spencer

Assignment 7C

October 6, 2017, Bi108 Old Testament Literature, Professor Armstrong

Moses' relationship to God,

His responsibility to the Israelites, his sins and consequences, and his death.

Moses role in the life of the people of Israel was a great responsibility. Moses was the mediator between God and Israel. He was also the God's spokesperson to Pharaoh. He also was God's appointed leader of the Israelites of the Exodus from Egypt to the Promised Land, as well as Judge for the people. What a heavy burden for one person to have to undertake.

It was Moses, whom god chose to speak to Pharaoh and request that he let God's people go. It was this same Moses with his Brother Aaron that continued to go before pharaoh and ask him to let Gods People go. After 10 request and 10 plaques Pharaoh agreed thus began the Exodus out of Egypt for the Israelites. After the Exodus from Egypt Pharaoh had a change of mind and persued the Israelites. The Israelites had made it to the Red Sea with Pharaoh on their heels, that is when the great miracle of the parting of the Red Sea happened and all the Israelites crossed over on dry ground.

In the wilderness Moses became mediator between God and man, God gave Moses Laws that He expected his people to follow, and Moses delivered them to his surprise that the Israelites were partying and worshipping an Golden Idol. So as a curse to the Israelites God had Moses to lead the people in the wilderness till all the Exodus generation had died. During this journey there were so much bickering and complaining of the Israelites Moses had the task of being a Judge to the people.

Finally fed up with the complaints of the people on day the people complained of not having water and God told Moses to speak to the rock and water will come forth out of the mountain but Moses didn't. Moses went and struck the rock on the mountain and because of that disobedient Moses was not allowed to enter the Promised Land. God only allowed him to see the Promised Land.