

Student Monthly Journal- September- October 2017

As I write this report, I am reminded as called servants of God, we are to be prudent in our ministerial assignments. Therefore, as I continue to engage these students, it is prevalent that the negative influences of the world are affecting their behavior. Because of this, my devotion and dialogue is dedicated toward delivering our kids from the commonality of demonic influences.

With that being said, it is imminent that if there is not some form of faith intervention, these kids will become more rude and rebellious. My concerns regarding this issue are frequently discussed with the director. We are in agreement that more programs must be established for all the youth in the church. Especially, since we have so many teens that come to assist us in Children's Church, that need age appropriate teaching catering to their issues. No doubt, a Christian Education Department is definitely needed in the church. Not just for the younger kids, but all of God's children, so that disciples are made. Nevertheless, our goal in this ministry is to instill confidence and courage in them, as we seek to save our children from what they deem right behavior, when disrespect is clearly shown.

Because of this, parents are expressing concerns, regarding their child's behavior, which I am grateful; that they are sharing with us, the problems they are experiencing first hand, that we encounter on Sundays. Moreover, these concerns are been communicated to the church leaders and we are hopeful, that the body of Christ will come together, to fight for lives of our youth. Therefore, I am openly renouncing ungodly behaviors, in them and expounding on biblical disciplines and character, under the theme of building "Godly Leaders." Because of this, I am relying completely on the Holy Spirit in the curriculum preparation, and classroom discipline to instill character in our children, and courage to overcome demonic influences. As a result, these principles are empowering and molding my leadership capacity; for greater missionary works, while appealing to their senses to encourage them in their faith.
