BUILDING COMMUNITY QUESTIONNAIRE

AS I began to fill out the questionnaire, I had to look back over my leadership skills as a leader to make sure that I was building communities with my co-workers and with my co-teacher.

Being a leader can be somewhat stressful at times especially when you are trying to make sure that everyone fits in and that you don't overlook any particular person or follower in your organization or on your team. For example, in the case study 10.1 the president of the organization, James, I believe took his eyes off of trying to building a communication and overlooked some of the team players not realizing their feelings were hurt and they were also feeling left out, in other words, not part of the community.

As leaders, we have to make sure that everyone is part of the community regardless of their cultural background, everyone has something to give and something to put in to Reach the goals. Again, leaders have to listen, show respect and realize that everyone has unique contributions to bring to the table.
