

WA#4

Carroll Norwood

Beulah Heights University

In partial fulfillment of the requirements for the course

LS 101 Developing the Healthy Leader

Department of Religious (or Leadership or Business) Studies

November 12, 2017

Leadership is the capability of stimulating those you lead into positive performance, wherein it motivates others to do the same. Leadership is not a single team member's actions; but it is team actions to produce productivity for the organization and company through excelling to rated number one company. An excellent leader will always give themselves away, by developing other leaders. Those leaders will lead with the core values entrusted to them, through work performance, properly aligning company or organization's policies, with their leadership influence. It will become the force that moves any organization or company through direction, purpose, and to accomplishments through the leadership developments skills they have obtained. Leadership also comprise efforts aimed at the following: Innovations, influence, visionary, and conqueror.