

Exploring Diversity

Chapter13 worksheet

1. Dumb jocks
2. LiarS
3. Gay
4. Male
5. Hotheads
6. Homosexual
7. Lazy moochers
8. Lazy
9. Nice
10. Dogs
11. Gold Diggers
12. Broke

Part 2

1. Stereotypes can cause you to mis- characterize someone.
2. Prejudice is the result of the environment you live in and the cultural biases you have been taught.
3. Harmful mistreatment of people different from yourself often occurs as a result of prejudice. Feelings and beliefs of superiority is often the result of prejudice as well. This has led genocide.

1. My ethnic background is black.
2. My parents and grandparents were all born in Georgia.
3. My dad had a sixth grade education and my mother graduated from high school.
4. I only speak English.
5. Passing my Accounting class was my biggest challenge this semester.
6. One of my dreams is to start another church or ministry as well as a business.
7. I most enjoy ministry and meeting new people.
8. Honesty. I feel a lot of misunderstandings and mistrust can be avoided by being honest.
9. I am most proud of my children.
10. That I sell jewelry.

Exploring My Culture Worksheet

1. I grew up in Conyers, Georgia. It is situated about 30min east of Atlanta, Georgia. It was a quiet town for the most part. It is the county seat of Rockdale County. To the naked eye, it was not very diverse. It was largely a majority white enclave with a rather small black population and little else. The same was the case at Rockdale County High School where I attended. Even though it was common to have friends of both races, there were on occasion racial squabbles and uprisings as well. In spite of that it is a nice place to live and raise a family. Today it is a more racially diverse area where the majority of the city leaders are African American.

2. I learned the Christian faith in my family. This meant you went to church regularly. You were expected to respect all elders and adults at all times.
3. I learned from my teachers very little in the way of values. I believe they would describe me as being smarter than my grades reflected. A nice student who was a little bit jokester, but an overall good kid.
4. My religious training greatly influence my beliefs. We attended church on a regular base. We were expected to be involved in church. My grandfather was a pastor and my father was a deacon. My father influenced my religious beliefs greatly. He bought me my first bible and my very own hymn book that I still have to this day.
5. Currently not in a relationship
6. Having children did not significantly change my values and beliefs
7. Yes, I believe they are right for today. Solid Christian values are timeless and always relevant. A strong faith in God, a desire to live by the golden rule will never become obsolete.