I was invited to a church celebration program for a pastor that was running for Congress back in 2015. It turned out to be such a blessing for me. I met Mother Greene and she told me about her condition having cancer. She was so filled with love and joy she took me by my hand saying you have to meet my only daughter. I knew they were from another country because there beautiful accent. I met Dr. Arleen Greene mother Greene joined our sister friend together. The months pass by and mother passed away. We are still very close today and have grown as mother desired us to be. Dr. Arleen Green was born and raised in Jamaica and came to the united states when she was very young. She speaks English very fluently and she is a registered nurse in her profession. She work with children something she really admires and she said God has given her much compassion to do and she love it.

Dr. Arleen said her difficulties were after getting married here and divorce. How is affected her children and her struggles becoming a single parent. But she said I still have children to raise so I have to live and deliver being a mother to them. It took a lot out of her. But she said thinking about her mother's courage in her sickness. it gave her inner strength to continue on. Her core values are to continue to bring self-improvement to herself and to fulfill her journey with much courage. She is self-discipline in what it is she so desires her writing and finishing her book. She believe there are always formulas to help other individuals in this life. There is time frame and accountability no matter what are before her the challenges. She said being from poor country has always humble her to never forget where she came from. She said good work takes time and being thankful what is before one is a blessings. Dr. Arleen likes has been in the USA is that she was able to persevere and be free to whatever it is that she has set her goals to complete. Always she said knowing having people that really love her and treat her kind. Her dislikes unfortunately is when she see the struggles of people. Her thoughts are I wish that there is something more she could do. Every Sunday before going out to work. There are sandwiches she has prepared and feeds as many people as she can. She said seeing people hungry that really touches her deep down inside.

I learned much from interviewing Dr. Arleen Green, communicating is such a reward between too people. It surely has connected our friendship and as we have shared our stories we don't have to be a shame. Some of our stories has been similar but recognizing we both have overcome many obstacles in our past life's. I am thankful of what I have been blessed with before me and that is what I use. I don't complain about it whether is food, clothing and shelter. I love the realness and compassion toward others to be respectful and kind to everyone. That is no matter where someone is from.
