

Proposal #1 cp

The Religious Creeds

This research is to propose the religious ideas that formulate the Christian doctrine. The creeds being explored are the Nicene Creed, Catholic Creed, and Christian Creed, to ascertain the origin of each formal statement and spiritual foundation for their beliefs. Moreover, searching the significant of the spiritual substance for comparison and continuity is paramount, since they are based on faith principles and decrees. Because of this, examining God, Jesus and the Holy Spirit in these professions is pivotal in this examination, while considering the origin of the religious motifs ascribed to the foundation principles, is the spiritual substance in them, since they are spoken by men and women regarding what they believe and are the confessed standards they acquiesce to live by.

In light of this, understanding the basis for the creeds that are declared by many congregants weekly in liturgical and worship assembly decrees is essential, because many may be reciting words that are due to general church protocol, rather than genuine calls of faithful devotion to God. Therefore, in this research, this proposal is to determine the definition of the creeds for each religious entity discussed, whereas to decide if the disciplines for these codes of behavior, is truly impacting the duties of the people of faith adhering to these statements of belief.
