

WAL-MART IS IT GOOD OR BAD FOR AMERICAN

In my opinion Wal-Mart use to be good for America, the prices were manageable, and the staff members were always available to assist the customers. Mainly the elderly and handicap. Through they still appear to be customer friendly some of their good quality behavior has and still is fading fast. Their prices had sky rocketed since the rollback champagne was 1st implemented into their daily routine. Now you don't really see that anymore. The riding carts that we use to get around the store are not readily available any longer. And they pay no attention to who's riding them and if infect they are truly in need of them. Why am I voicing my opinion on this matter? Because I happen to shop there twice a week. For lax of transportation.

So I've noticed over the years You would think that with so many employees service would be a breeze, Unfortunately that is not the case. The demands for quality service as far as Wal-Mart are concerned. Once Wal-Mart knew that they would continue to be a success their moral and values for customer service went out the window. People are so self-absorbed today as a whole the customers the staff members and their employees that everyone's view of nobility has taken a turn for the worst. Walmart's clients will eventually gravitate towards lower prices and better service. The cause and effecting this matter are Walmart CEO's aren't involved like the should be and really, they're not even concerned. Most of the managers are children with not enough experience to even understand what's really going on. their afraid to make any type of mistake so they do as they are told and except any kind of treatment or setbacks. These poor people are really the back bone of Walmart so again I say Walmart is bad for America.

Il use to think Walmart was a good store but as I read up on there history I now disagree. They have truly tricked a lot of people and taken a whole lot of customers away from various businesses. Their complacency is really starting to raise its ugly head. It is just a matter of time. so, with I believe therefore so many Americans are starting to think that Walmart is one of the worst company's in the in America. There is talk about Walmart closing 5 stores in 4 states for plumbing problems, an excuse many are interpreting as union problems. In terms of labor regulations Walmart is basically the Michael Jordan of retail chains. At one point in time it was said that Walmart was receiving around 5,000 law suits a year. From Walmart workers and Sam's club alike. Walmart hurts local communities. The company also uses foreign labor including child workers. This is my point exactly the corporation has been accused of paying off officials in foreign companies to keep many of their detail silent. They also have an off-shore account 6.2 million that he U.S cannot tax them for. However various store really paints a gruesome picture. They also under pay women and neglect the pregnant ones. And of all things could you believe that they really have the neve to discriminate against workers with disabilities and elderly employees. Walmart is notorious for wage theft, and do not supply a safe
