

We can determine that the pest is eating away at the crop and leaving behind a brown residue. The plant is chewed, and the pest ate a lot of the top part of the plant, as well as eating away at the leaves.