

Matthew Biegel

2.1.2 Brainstorming

Utilizing Animals to help Global Hunger

There are many different ideas to help lower the numbers related to global hunger. Animal use could be one of the ways that global hunger can be minimized, and different methods can be researched. Whether the animal be used for food, or for work, there are many options.

Who? Global hunger should be looked at depending on region. If it is looked at globally, there may be some overwhelming ideas that could defeat the project. When considering different regions around the world that suffer from hunger, there is a more manageable outlook.

What? How can animals be utilized to lower the effects of global hunger? What are the different options that we should utilize them?

When? Current issues of global hunger should be looked at as it is more relevant. There is still a lot that can be done, and the past cannot be changed, and we are not sure what the future will look like for the issue.

Where? Global hunger should be broken down into regions, so possibly countries and areas will be listed.

Why? This is a topic that is of concern to many people, and research can possibly lead to a solution. If not for the complete issue, maybe just for an area.

How? Research needs to be completed to determine how global hunger can be beaten. With the utilization of animals, various organizations can be contacted and input can be added from many different sources.