

The Story of Water

We all go through the water cycle, more than once, and not always in the same way. At one point or another we are located in groundwater, surface water, precipitation, atmosphere, or in an organism. In the water cycle we can be three different forms. We can be a liquid, gas, or solid.

I start my journey as a water droplet in strawberry creek. While in the creek I am in liquid form, I am also surface water. As I follow down the river with my fellow water droplets I see a dark shadow come over me.

Suddenly I realize that I've been swallowed by a crawfish. So, now I am a water droplet in the belly of a crawfish. While in the belly of the crawfish I am in the liquid form, I am also, an organism. Then the crawfish got caught by a fisherman and shipped somewhere. When we got to our destination, the crate with crawfish, and with me in it, fell out of the back of the truck.

When we fell out of the back of the truck the crawfish peed me out and I ended up in the atmosphere as an ice crystal in the clouds high above in the mountains of Fruitvale. While in the clouds I am I in a solid form. As I am in the clouds I gravitate to the top of the mountain it starts to snow.

As it snows I end up at the top of the mountain north of Fruitvale. While as precipitation as snow I am in a solid form. I end up sliding down the mountain and end up as a snow patch

I am in solid form on the surface of the mountain. I have moved into a snow patch down the mountain by the Eat'em Up Berry Farm. But lately the temperatures have been going up and I've started to melt.

As I've melted I've turned into a puddle that is seeping into the soil underneath the Eat'em Up Berry Farm, therefore I am in a liquid form. Since I'm now underneath the farm am considered groundwater.

My journey has been a crazy one from the stream to the crawfish to the mountain to now being underground. I've been surface water, groundwater, in the atmosphere, precipitation, and let's not forget being in an organism. I've also been in a liquid form and a solid form this time around, but every time my journey will be different. Life as a water droplet is always interesting, and never boring. I love my life as a water droplet that's for sure.
