

First Form I chose is Precipitation that is falling into a creek that went to the surface form in strawberry creek. This happened because of precipitation. When it rains the raindrops can land anywhere and my rain drop landed in the creek water then traveled downstream blending in with the river water.

The third thing that happened is the raindrop in the creek turned into groundwater when it went into the city well. The stream was filtered and carried into the well that is used for drinking water. That is because of rain falling

Next the water from the well went up into the atmosphere as a dark cloud. This happened because the water in the well dried up and then evaporated into to the atmosphere which turned into the cloud. An angry cloud to be exact

After that the raindrop from the cloud went into a organism and the glands on the animal's tongue. The animal is jojo and she got the raindrop when she drank some water from a puddle that came from the cloud.

Finally from jojo's tongue, the raindrop ended up in a surface as a swimming pool. After jojo decided to take a swim she was playing fetch and she opened her mouth. Because of this action, the raindrop went out of her mouth when she spit out the water ending up back in the pool.
