

Clinical Experience Reflection

Select 1 patient you saw today, complete the log & return to your instructor via dropbox within 24 hours of clinical date

Student Name: Celia Jennifer Rodriguez _____ Preceptor Name: ~~Patricia Slachta~~ _____ Megan Berry

Clinical Site Name: Queens Medical Center _____ Today's clinical hours _____ 3 _____ Log Date:

11/22/2022

Care Setting: Hospital _____ Ambulatory Care _____ Home Care _____ Other: _____ Total # of patients seen today: 2 _____

Age/Sex	Primary Diagnosis	Pertinent History/Physical	WOC management issues	Patient Education Needs	What skill did you learn?
65 years	Diagnosis: tracheal esophageal fistula, worsened difficulty swallowing	Esophageal cancer, pt. on neoadjuvant chemo radiation therapy.	Peri-fistula skin care, pouch appliance management.	Peri-fistula skin care, pouching system, and pouch appliance. You used pouch appliance in previous column and this. Not sure I understand that exactly.	A new technique using hydrocolloid to protect the pt's skin. Under the pouch?

Hmmmm, As you can tell by reading my questions I am struggling a little to understand. Perhaps I am not asking the right questions in the log... What do you think?

For instance, I'm not sure if this patient was pouching their fistula prior to seeing you or that is something you tried and now need to teach them as you have pouching under patient education needs. And is the new technique just the use of a hydrocolloid or was there something else in particular you did with that product? And was it placed under this pouch? And if so, what kind of 'system' is being used?

Do my questions make sense?