

Disclaimer

- Use, description or examples of any product or brand in this course is for educational purposes only, and does not indicate endorsement of any product.
- Product examples are used to represent a category of products, of which there are numerous types that frequently change.
- It is up to the individual clinician to assess the patient and determine which product is most appropriate for a particular patient and situation.
- Each WOC clinician should follow their own organizational policies to set up product formularies based on the needs of specific patient populations.

