

Jenna Dixon

12/8/20

1. Why is Side lying position better for feeding preterm infants?

-Side lying position is better for feeding preterm infants because it gives you good external control of pacing the baby so they can regulate their bolus control better, gives the nurse or caregiver the opportunity to feel what is going on with the infants' respirations and swallow, and provides a trunk elongated position so the infant is not flexed and putting pressure on their abdomen which causes a lot of reflux in babies.

2. What are some indications for feeding tube placement discussed in the video?

-Some indications for feeding tube placement include prematurity, feeding immaturity, poor oro-motor skills, infants receiving assisted ventilation.

3. How long before the cord stump falls off?

-The cord stump will fall off in about 2-3 weeks after drying up and scabbing over.

4. What are some tips for changing a male newborn diaper?

-When changing a male newborn diaper, it is helpful to point the penis down into the diaper so that he urinates into the diaper and not straight up.