

I have wanted to be a nurse since I was a child. I always loved taking care of people and when my dad had back surgery it really sparked my interest when he let me change his bandages. Then I became a mother at 18 years old and I was on bedrest at Covenant for a month and my baby was premature, causing him to have to be in the NICU. The nurses who cared for me and my baby inspired me to further my education and apply for nursing school. I would love to be an antepartum or NICU nurse. I feel like it is my calling, and I can't wait to start my journey!
