

Why Nursing?

I decided to pursue nursing after I seen my great-grandmother be put on hospice because her days were soon coming to an end. While at home, my mother who was a her caregiver during this time, would bathe her, feed her, comb her hair, and make her feel as comfortable as she possibly can. She would also sometimes sing to her, knowing that any moment her eyes would shut forever. I figured that if my Mom can make someone feel good about their last moments in their life, I can too. Helping people through the toughest times in their life is what made me want to be a nurse.
