

Covenant School of Nursing Reflective

Learning to be a reflective practitioner includes not only acquiring knowledge and skills, but also the ability to establish a link between theory and practice, providing a rationale for actions. Reflective practice is the link between theory and practice and a powerful means of using theory to inform practice thus promoting evidence based practice.” (Tsingos et al., 2014)

Using the Reflective Practice template, document each step. The suggestions in the boxes may help you as you reflect on the incident. This Reflective Practice document will be reviewed by faculty and then you will post the final reflection in your LiveBinder folder.

Step 1 Description A description of the incident, with relevant details. Remember to maintain patient confidentiality. Don't make judgments yet or try to draw conclusions; simply describe the events and the key players. Set the scene! It might be useful to ask yourself the following questions • What happened? • When did it happen? • Where were you? • Who was involved? • What were you doing? • What role did you play? • What roles did others play? • What was the result?	Step 4 Analysis • What can you apply to this situation from your previous knowledge, studies or research? • What recent evidence is in the literature surrounding this situation, if any? • Which theories or bodies of knowledge are relevant to the situation – and in what ways? • What broader issues arise from this event? • What sense can you make of the situation? • What was really going on? • Were other people's experiences similar or different in important ways? • What is the impact of different perspectives eg. personnel / patients / colleagues?
Step 2 Feelings Don't move on to analyzing these yet, simply describe them. • How were you feeling at the beginning? • What were you thinking at the time? • How did the event make you feel? • What did the words or actions of others make you think? • How did this make you feel? • How did you feel about the final outcome? • What is the most important emotion or feeling you have about the incident? • Why is this the most important feeling?	Step 5 Conclusion • How could you have made the situation better? • How could others have made the situation better? • What could you have done differently? • What have you learned from this event?
Step 3 Evaluation • What was good about the event? • What was bad? • What was easy? • What was difficult? • What went well? • What did you do well? • What did others do well? • Did you expect a different outcome? If so, why? • What went wrong, or not as expected? Why? • How did you contribute?	Step 6 Action Plan • What do you think overall about this situation? • What conclusions can you draw? How do you justify these? • With hindsight, would you do something differently next time and why? • How can you use the lessons learned from this event in future? • Can you apply these learnings to other events? • What has this taught you about professional practice about yourself? • How will you use this experience to further improve your practice in the future?

Step 1 Description My nurse and I the student were doing our morning medications. When I was in one of my patients room giving a lovenox injection while my nurse was observing me. The nurse talked me through the shot and told me to give then injection slow and to instruct the patient not to mess with the injection site because it could cause bruising.	Step 4 Analysis The nurse was really being a great teacher. I told one of my peers about how that made so much sense as to why so many patients have such big bruises around their injection sites. My peer thought the tip was also helpful.
Step 2 Feelings In the beginning I felt intimidated because I thought he was trying to walk me through it because the nurse thought I could not properly give a lovenox injection. It made me nervous to give the patient the shot because I felt incompetent. Until I realized he was just trying to give me pointers to help, and to not bring me down.	Step 5 Conclusion I need to not immediately assume that any nurse instructor, or nurse preceptor is assuming that I am unskilled. They have been doing this along time and have a lot of experience that can help me. With the nurse talking to the patient, it helped the patient feel safe.
Step 3 Evaluation The tips that the nurse gave me were very helpful. They were patient teaching that I did not know. Not only was he giving me tips he was distracting the patient since they had never had a lovenox injection before. I thought the nurse was unskilled they were just helping to help me get better.	Step 6 Action Plan I will be using the tips that the nurse gave me and get to know the patient more and talk to them while giving shots, so they are distracted. I should also start to ask my nurses more questions, and not fear them. They have a lot of experience and I still have so many things to learn.
