Why I Want to Become a Nurse

The reason I want to become a nurse is because I want to make a difference in the world. Today's world is filled with so much negativity and hate and I want to do whatever I can to change that. I've seen too many healthcare workers with such little compassion for helping people that I want to try and do things differently for the better. I think I have a kind and caring heart and I really want to share that with others, especially in a setting that helps people everyday.
