

Why I Want To Be A Nurse

I have known since I was a child that I want to be a nurse, I believe that the Lord gave me the calling and passion to help people. My grandparents have passed away but growing up I saw them have health issues, and I want to make a difference in the world and help heal somebody's loved one using medicine and God's healing power to work through us. In my career as a nurse, I will always strive to remember why I wanted this career in the beginning, to help people and make a difference and embrace them and show God's love. Becoming a nurse is my dream in life, because I believe I will be servicing God by serving humanity and my purpose and destiny given to me by God. Sickness is a time when people need help the most, it's very serious and I look forward to making a difference in their lives and upholding them as my own family.

Aubri Diaz