

I want to be a nurse because ultimately, I love helping people for whatever reason it may be. Nursing has always been something that I want to do in life, and I love people and love being around people. I am naturally someone that people always just turn to whether they are hurt, happy or just need someone to listen to and I love being there for them, and I think this will help me to one day become a great nurse.