

I want to be a nurse, because I want to help people. I've known I have always wanted to be a nurse ever since I was little. I love helping others get well again, and I know this is my calling. I look up to my aunt who is a nurse, she is one of my biggest role models in life. I remember the long nights of her endless studying, but she would tell me it would all pay off in the end, and it definitely did. I want to be a nurse because they have such a huge impact in the world, what would we do without them? Nurses will always be in demand, and it creates a great job opportunity everywhere you go.
