This nurse failed to count the amounts of narcotics left in the system and it was later found that 32 tablets of methadone was missing. This nurse also gets caught with 0.086 blood concentrated alcohol level while working.

I think this nurse could have prevented by counting the correct dose of narcotics left and for being drunk on the job, I think that this nurse should have call in and stay home than working while under the influence of alcohol this nurse won't be able to critical think and recognize what is going on with the patient and make it very unsafe for the patient. the universal competencies that this nurse violated is safety and security, critical thinking, professional role performance.

If I discover the event that this nurse is being intoxicated, I will immediately report it to the charge nurse instead of confronting the nurse because it is patient safety, and I would go and check on all the patients that this nurse is taking care of to see if the patient is safe.
