

Hello I am Vanette Martinez,

The nursing field has always grabbed my attention because I have spent many times in the hospital. I had been hospitalized in the past for more than fifteen days and during that time I had the opportunity to see the nursing field up-close. Nurses have many responsibilities and during those fifteen days, I was one of them. Seeing how they care for someone who they had just met made me realize that nurses put their heart into the patients care. I want to be there for someone the same way the nurses were there for me. Seeing how the nurses work for twelve hours each day made me realize that I need to be ready to be up on my feet for twelve hours and still have a positive attitude. I got to appreciate the nursing field each time I would end up in the hospital and that gave me motivation to follow my nursing career.
