

I knew at a very young age I wanted to be a nurse. I watched my mom be one of the best nurses I have known. I got to experience going on home health runs, volunteering at a facility both my parents worked at and just fell in love with helping people and making them feel better. I started my prerequisites for the CSON program and right before I was done, I decided to get my CNA license to make sure this is what I really wanted to do with my life. Shortly after I started my job at Covenant on the oncology floor and got to work and learn from the best nurses around. Being a CNA showed me the hard work that goes into nursing and the heart that it takes to be great! I have been all over the hospital and helped many different people. I am now 2 years in and I love the hands on and bedside work, I love making a difference and knowing I can help someone no matter how big or small the problem is.
