

Hans Burda

SIM Reflection - Week 7

This week of simulations came as an unexpected surprise with the escape room activity. I was expecting a small review of material given the fact that our simulation time was only an hour each group. It was very cool to see the setup of the nursing themed escape room and the puzzles we had to solve. It was also nice to see the value of teamwork and how we were able to test our knowledge in a different and entertaining way. When working as a team in the escape room, I noticed how organized we were as a group and how each of us anticipated the next part of the puzzle at every step, in order to achieve maximum efficiency. I also liked how the debrief tied in the importance of teamwork, organization and staying calm especially in cases of emergency. Overall, I learned a lot this week and I hope to do more in the future.