In this malicious case the nurse dragged and pulled a patient into their room after the patient had fallen.

This case is very un-nurse like being that a nurse is supposed to be caring and a patient advocate but being that the nurse didn't help the patient up and rather dragged them into the room while still on the floor this would be a breach of safety and maybe even patient negligence.

If I saw this first hand I would yell to the nurse tell them to stop what they are doing, go help the patient back into a standing position or into a chair, tell an executive of the hospital of my finding and represent the hospital of my witnessing the nurse dragging the patient of the floor.
