

Asking questions as a new nurse

Today while in clinical I thought it was a great example that the nurse I was following asked a lot of questions. He did not hesitate to ask for help and assistance.

This reminded me that it is important to ask questions and ask for a second opinion.

The experience makes me feel more comfortable with asking questions.

I also now understand that it is okay and important.

All of us as nurses should make sure we are in an environment that is friendly for asking questions?
