I have always wanted to become a nurse. Serving others through times of heartbreak, healing, or heartwarming moments has always been something I have had a passion towards. Having a servant's heart for me means to work selflessly to comfort, help, and brighten the lives around you. I have always felt that nursing would allow me the opportunity to put these gifts to use. Becoming a nurse has always been a dream of mine and I will continue to push towards this dream until I can touch the hearts of many through patience, love, and understanding.
