Step 1 Description I was in the emergency department today and the beginning of the day started with preparation of the room. We gathered all material for the bed to have ready and all equipment and tubes that'll be used. We had 4 patients come in at the same time once was in progressed labor, the other had hypertension, and the last two were having complaints of pain. We had admitted one and the other three got blood work and sent home. Overall was an eventful day and got to do one of the blood draws as well.	Step 4 Analysis All the nurses on the floor worked really well with one another. It really felt like everyone had each others back and I can tell all the patients were getting great care. I enjoyed working with my nurse she was very caring and had a lot of experience on the floor. I learned a lot of from her and the other nurses as well.
Step 2 Feelings I was nervous cause last time I didn't really even know there was an ED on the floor there. But I felt calm and open to learning once I got there. Once the rush happened I was a little bit jittered but my nurse was being very proficient so it was easier to do actions rather than think. She was very trust worthy.	Step 5 Conclusion I got a lot of experience in patient care with pregnant patients and got to see in depth care. I saw how the patients are admitted, assessed, and discharged. The nurses worked on a team very well together and constantly assisted one another when not busy. There was a lot of communication throughout the nurses as well.
Step 3 Evaluation I thought overall how the ED was setup was very convenient and the nurse tech/ can were very helpful in all patient care as well. I had a good experience with getting a better understanding on how care is met with pregnant patients who are in labor or near term.	Step 6 Action Plan I plan to implement the type of care I saw throughout on the floor into my own practice. From the experience adn knowledge I gained I will be able to properly assess a patient and be able to identify warning signs and implement safety measures.
