I would like to become an RN because I feel that It has the potential to broaden my horizons and enable me to experience new things in the healthcare profession.I would like to work in Labor and Delivery. However, if that is not possible I will have a plethora of other options. Nursing requires a lot of empathy and compassion and I know that I possess these qualities. I believe that I am able to see the patient and not just their chart. Nursing is a challenging job. It will test your will and make you question your soul and what you stand for.
