

My why for wanting to become a nurse first came around when my interest peaked in the field from watching all the trauma/drama medical shows! Also having a family member in a similar field as a paramedic and just seeing the look on his face after helping someone and how he would explain how good it felt knowing that you helping others and making a difference somehow and in some way made me want to do it even more, and now I could not imagine doing anything different!