Why Nursing?

Hello, my name is Brette Behrens. I have always been interested in nursing since I was a little girl. In my family, we have numerous relatives in healthcare professions. I have aunts and grandparents who are and were nurses, anesthetists, and caregivers. Although I love my family dearly this dream didn't come into my heart because of them. Growing up I was raised very Christian. I am Catholic and am very proud of it. I say this because, in health care, it is vital to be in a relationship with God to reach others. Miracles happen all over hospitals and I believe to touch a patient's heart and to give them the best care they need is to have a valued Lord-centered nurse. Nursing takes kind, caring, and loving humans to exceed a patient's well-being. I believe I fit all of those categories. I want to change people's lives like God has cared for me. My Grandma, Mitzi Brockman, was an RN. She is now about to turn 84 and is living to be very healthy. She was diagnosed with Cancer two years ago and is a survivor, that all being said none of it would have been possible without her nurses. The nurses that cared for her, gave her comfort and love through one of the most difficult times in her life. I pray that one day I can be an impactful nurse so that others will remember me as well.
