Aaron Rodriguez

I want to become a nurse because I find that caring for others is one of my passions. I think caring for others is one of the most good-natured acts of kindness we as people can do. I want to make a difference in people's lives, build relationships with patients and families, and most importantly make a positive impact on the world.