Why Nursing?

“Why nursing?” It is a question that may be regularly asked, but it's an easy answer for me. I have wanted to work in healthcare since I was young, but recently the meaning has become more significant for me as I saw firsthand the importance of their work with my grandpas, who recently passed away. Taking care of my grandparents taught me patience and compassion for caring for others. It may be difficult at times, but being that help they need to get through the days brought me this happiness. We are that source of hope and healing they may need, even with a simple act of kindness. Seeing these acts of kindness nurses did while with my grandparents is something that I would love to do as well, which is why I chose nursing.
