

Self-Assessment

After taking the assessment learned that I am a tactile learner. This means that I prefer hands on learning, rather than visual or auditory learning. The assessment led me to realize that I could improve more on reading and organizing my things in order to achieve greater results. Although, the study habits I have now are working well and they help me achieve my goals.