I want to be a nurse, because I've always wanted to help others, especially others who can't help themselves. What really opened my eyes to the healthcare field was when my grandmother got sick I remember me being a little girl but I was always by my grandmother's side whether she needed a cup of water or just for me to turn the channel I was there. During that time I realized then that I wanted to become a nurse.