Clinical Judgment:

Patient Centered Care:

Professionalism:

As a student nurse, I remained professional and supportive when assisting a patient who was scheduled for a long overdue Pap smear exam and expressed embarrassment about bumps and noticed around her vagina. I reassured her that many women experience concerns like this and that seeking care is an important and responsible step for her health. I maintained a calm, respectful tone and emphasized that the clinic is a safe, judgment-free space where her feelings and questions are valid. My efforts included “normalizing” her concerns and reminder her that she was doing the right thing by coming in to be evaluated.
