

What truly started my dream of being a nurse was seeing my baby brother in the NICU. I was sitting in that chair holding my little brother and I just knew being a nurse helping babies was my dream. As I got older I still had a passion for helping others I got to do the PCT program once I finished my senior year I went straight to working in the medical field. Working with my patients is just the best feeling knowing that I am helping them and making them feel comfortable while they are trying their best to get better is just the best feeling in the world. From helping my patients with just a cup of water to helping them take a bath hearing them say how much better I made them feel with the simple acts of my job is what it's all about. I can't wait to start this next chapter!
