

Why do I want to be a nurse?

If I must be honest, I have never wanted to become a nurse. My entire life I told everyone I was never going to be a nurse only because my mother is a nurse and she went to school while I was just a young child. Her frequent absence and dedication to her studies caused her to be missed. Now after almost 11 years from finishing high school, married with 3 small children and not a whole lot of options left, I have found myself here. I believe the Lord has intended this for me, and I must do my best and carry out this next chapter of my life. Wherever it brings me, I am extremely optimistic and excited for what I can do with a nursing career.
