

I want to become a nurse to help those who cannot help themselves when they are sick. To be there for someone in their last hours of life to me is the most honorable thing you can do for another human being. I know what it is like to be in the hospital sick and have a nurse who cares and is there to help your family means everything in those scared moments. I want to be able to not just be there and care for the sick, but also be comforting and there for the patients family. I think that makes a big difference in patient care.
