Using this report for Career Planning

Jean-Pierre, the underlying principle for using this report is that people who match their work with their personalities, interests, skills and values generally enjoy and succeed in their work. Thus, your feedback in the four areas shown below will provide valuable information for your career planning. All of these areas should be considered before making your career decisions.

Your results will not spell out one specific occupation for you. Rather, you will be given key information that will help you understand your unique makeup and the type of work that would be a good match for you. The general approach is much better, because usually there will be several similar occupations that match a person's interests and talents. By using the Career Direct[®] Next Steps segment of the guidance system, you will be able to refine your options into a good choice for a career field. This includes the Next Steps section (Section 5), in particular Job Detail Links (O*Net) and the Action Plan, and Section 6 (Resources). Choose those that are appropriate for you. The process of using your talents and interests to make career decisions that also align with your personality and values will serve you well both now and in your future career management.

GETTING THE MOST FROM YOUR REPORT

There is a lot of information in this report, so you will want to read it through several times. It also can be very beneficial to have someone, such as a friend, spouse, or mentor, read through your report with you. Usually someone who knows you well, yet is different from you in personality can be especially helpful in picking up on concepts you might miss. If you decide to enlist a Career Direct Consultant for more specific help with your career planning, this report would be especially helpful in providing insights into your unique career potential. As mentioned earlier, the most important step you can take to gain full benefit from this report is to meet with a Consultant and to work through the Action Plan in your CAREER DIRECT GUIDANCE SYSTEM.

Career Direct® Complete Guidance System Report

ORGANIZATION OF THE REPORT

The report is organized into four major areas: Personality, General Interests, Skills, and Values. Each of these areas provides key insights into your unique makeup. Definitions of all groups in the report may be found in the Job Sampler that is contained in your CAREER DIRECT GUIDANCE SYSTEM.

1. Personality. The report begins with the personality section, in which you will find an analysis of six personality factors in your Personality Highlights, your Typical Strengths and Non-Strengths, and your Career Environment based on your unique personality profile.
2. General Interests. In this section you will see a ranking of your interests in 21 General Interests Career Groups and descriptions of your highest career groups. These broad career groupings are derived from the Vocational Interests section of the Assessment. Your scores reflect your level of interest in each of the 21 Career Groups. There also is a chart that lists the components that make up your top eight interests: the Activities, Occupations, and Subject Groups.
3. Skills and Abilities. Here you will see a ranking of your skills in 14 areas and descriptions of your strongest skills and abilities.
4. Values. This section has three parts: Work Environment, Work Expectations, and Life Values. Your top four priorities in each area will be highlighted.

Understanding The Scales And Scores

The scales for all of the sections are based on standardized scores that were derived from the responses of a large population of people who are successfully employed in various occupations. The scales provide a way for you to visually compare your scores to the scores of other typical workers. The scales also make it easy to spot trends. A sample of the scales used are shown below.

On the example split bar graph above, different ranges of personality are displayed. The range of standard scores on the graph is from +30 (left) to 0 (mid) to +30 (right) (60 point range) and the average score is 0 (mid range). For each factor, roughly one third of the population will score to the right (+6 to +30), one third will score mid-range (+5 left to 0 to +5 right), and one third to the left (+6 to +30). Below is an example of the scales and scores that is used for both the Interests and Skills and Abilities sections.

The sample graph above shows low interest (left), moderate interest (mid-range), and high interest (right) ranges. (This specific example shows a high interest in the Activity Interest of Animal Care). These scores do not indicate achievement or "good" or "bad" scores. They represent your relative standing, based on your responses, with other persons in the adult or youth categories.

Part 1: Personality

Concept of Personality

Jean-Pierre, in this section, the term personality describes the way a person is naturally motivated to act. For example, some people are naturally motivated to be very organized and precise, and some are more spontaneous and casual. Likewise, some are risk takers, and some are naturally cautious.

Experience and observation confirm that there is no best personality style. All styles are valid. All are needed in society and in the workplace. All have strengths and non-strengths.

It is very important to consider your personality style when making career decisions. The goal is to identify occupations that are a good match for your natural tendencies, as well as your interests, skills and values. Just as coaches need athletes of varying size and speed to play different positions, employers need a variety of personality styles to build successful teams.

1.1 Six Factors of Personality

This survey covers six major factors of your unique personality:

Again when it comes to personality, it is not better to be one or the other (e.g. Extroverted or Introverted). One must use the strengths associated with your unique personality.

These factors were derived through extensive research, and they are consistent with other established measurements of normal personality traits.

Each factor is associated with a range of behaviors. For example, those who score in the extroverted direction will naturally have a totally different response toward meeting strangers than those who score in the introverted direction. Those who fall in the mid-range typically exhibit a mix of behaviors. As you read this section, keep in mind that all points on the scale have strengths and non-strengths.

CONFIRMING YOUR PERSONALITY FEEDBACK

This section of your report, as well as the rest of the report, has been developed from the responses you provided and reflects profiles that are typical of people who scored like you. The reports are usually quite accurate, but every insight may not apply to you, so you will need to confirm the information presented. Consider the report based on your knowledge of yourself, and have the other person you ask to assist you to check your feedback also. Concentrate on the portions that accurately describe you.

1.2 YOUR PERSONALITY FACTORS AND SUB-FACTORS

Jean-Pierre, the next three pages list your six personality factors. They are listed in order from most extreme to least extreme.

1. Adventurous

venturesome, ambitious, and competitive and are attracted by a challenge

Career Implications

With your score on the CAUTIOUS/ADVENTUROUS factor, your work should include the opportunity to:

- ✓ Pioneer
- ✓ Take risks
- ✓ Compete
- ✓ Achieve high goals
- ✓ Be adventurous
- ✓ Start new projects

Your score on the CAUTIOUS/ADVENTUROUS scale indicates that you thrive on new challenges. You may feel quite comfortable undertaking activities which entail some risk. Your pioneering spirit causes you to move ahead into new areas with little hesitation. One of your key strengths is your high level of courage and initiative. Achievement is also very important to you. You probably find yourself setting lofty goals and then driving yourself to succeed. With high ambition and a very competitive spirit, you may find it natural to press for results you can see and measure. You probably expect to win at every challenge you undertake. The weaknesses that could be present are generally a result of overdoing the associated strengths of this dimension. For instance, you could become so competitive that you step on or manipulate others in order to win and achieve what is important to you. Also, your natural confidence in your ability to succeed might lead you to think you can be right on everything. Having advisors who will disagree and give the other side of issues will help you accurately evaluate decisions. Finally, you will be more effective by balancing your natural boldness with a measure of caution.

2. Introverted

you enjoy solitude over social interaction

Career Implications

Based on your score on the INTROVERTED/EXTROVERTED factor, you will be best suited for task-oriented occupations in which you can stay focused in one area. You likely will realize more satisfaction from working with things, data, or ideas, rather than people. Look for a work environment that will give you the opportunity to:

- ✓ Work quietly and efficiently
- ✓ Stay focused
- ✓ Work alone or one-on-one
- ✓ Minimize emotions
- ✓ Minimize social expectations
- ✓ Be factual

Your score on the INTROVERTED/EXTROVERTED scale indicates that you tend to be a reserved individual. You may prefer socializing with a few close friends rather than attending an event where you would have to make small talk with strangers. In a group, you probably come across as being quiet and reserved rather than loud and uninhibited. You may see your role in a group setting as being supportive and helpful to the leaders. One of your key strengths is your ability to keep a clear focus on the issue at hand. You tend to reserve your efforts for the important tasks rather than waste them trying to go in many directions at once. You may spend much of your energy observing, thinking, and listening so that when you do speak your comments have real substance. As a careful listener, others value your ability to hear what is being said and respond in a practical way. You tend to take a realistic view of people and events, rather than getting caught up in the hype that often motivates others to make emotional, spontaneous decisions.

Jean-Pierre, keep in mind that a strength overdone usually becomes a weakness. Your reserved nature can be a tremendous strength because it will enable you to work in a highly focused and efficient manner. On the other hand, most of us are part of a team--at work and at home. The ability to relate and even socialize is crucial to good communications and success in whatever we do. Unless your good ideas are shared, they may not be used. Look for times when it would be beneficial to yourself and to others to be more outgoing; then push yourself to get involved.

3. Unstructured / Conscientious (Mid-Range)

structured in some areas and operate spontaneously in others

Career Implications

Your mid-range score on the UNSTRUCTURED/CONSCIENTIOUS factor indicates that you enjoy some structure, but you also like some spontaneity. You like to be prepared, but you also may be comfortable with an on-the-spot response when necessary. In considering various career fields, look for occupations that offer a balance and can be described as:

- ✓ structured but not too rigid
- ✓ consistent but with some variety
- ✓ predictable but with some opportunities to be spontaneous
- ✓ detailed but with an opportunity to work broader issues

Your mid-range score on the UNSTRUCTURED/CONSCIENTIOUS scale indicates that you have the capacity to be both precise and carefree. As you examine your lifestyle and work habits you likely will discover some areas where you are very organized, thorough, and accurate. You may even rigidly defend some of your methods and ideas and find compromise distasteful.

In other areas, however, you may be carefree, loose, and even non attentive to detail. You may discover yourself resisting structure, rules, and established procedures in order to launch out in a new direction.

Because of your balance in this dimension, variety may best describe the level of conscientiousness in your life. Your surges of spontaneity and curiosity may be offset by caution and tentativeness. The reason is simple: In your view, some spheres of activity warrant more attention and care than others.

Your flexibility, combined with a persistent commitment to excellence, can produce remarkable results, especially when you write out your goals and develop a well-thought-out plan to make them happen.

4. Conventional / Innovative (Mid-Range)

willing to initiate new ideas when there is an obvious need but can also take a traditional perspective

Career Implications

With your mid-range score on the CONVENTIONAL/INNOVATIVE factor, you should look for an opportunity to moderately express creativity in your work. This likely will not be the main thrust of your work, but to meet your needs you should have some opportunity to exercise:

- ✓ Creativity
- ✓ Mental quickness
- ✓ Resourcefulness
- ✓ Problem solving
- ✓ Originality
- ✓ Inventiveness

Your mid-range score on the CONVENTIONAL/INNOVATIVE scale indicates that you desire a moderate amount of creative expression in your life and work. There are times when you initiate changes and new ideas for the sake of improvement. At other times you may find yourself quite content with the status quo. A constant diet of either extreme, however, eventually may lead to stress.

For this reason, you'll want to carefully evaluate and focus on specific areas in which you seem to be the most creative, productive, and effective. Likewise, try to pinpoint the areas of your life in which you are most resistant to change. Knowing these areas in advance will help you to capitalize on your strengths while minimizing your weaknesses. Planning for some variety in your schedule and life's work will also help you to maximize your strengths in this area.

5. Compliant / Dominant (Mid-Range)

comfortable as a leader or follower and will adapt to the needs of the situation

Career Implications

Based on your mid-range level of COMPLIANT/DOMINANT, you will want the opportunity to provide guidance in areas that are familiar and in which you have established expertise. Additionally, look for a moderate level of:

- ✓ Freedom to express opinions
- ✓ Independence
- ✓ Decision-making authority
- ✓ Management opportunities
- ✓ Opportunity to influence
- ✓ Input into long-range plans

Jean-Pierre, your score on the COMPLIANT/DOMINANT scale indicates a balance in your drive to lead and to follow. Typically, individuals with scores similar to yours simply read the setting they are in and respond accordingly. If someone steps forward to provide strong, quality leadership for the group, you are content to fall in and serve. However, if no clear leader emerges, you are comfortable moving into the leadership role.

This versatility - the capacity to be both leader and follower at different times - is a key strength. Some people prefer to be under the authority of someone else; others seem to be naturally driven to be in charge. God has blessed you with an attitude and a measure of ability and motivation that will allow you to do well in either situation.

The weakness for you to consider is not correctly assessing the situation, or perhaps transferring the conditions of one situation into another that is quite different. By wisely reading the situation, you will be able to determine your role.

6. Detached / Compassionate (Mid-Range)

capable of being objective about people and situations, yet agreeable and supportive

Career Implications

Your mid-range score on the DETACHED/COMPASSIONATE factor indicates a good balance of compassion and toughness in your personality. You should be quite comfortable in most work environments.

However, for the ideal work environment, you'll want to avoid the extremes. For instance, a cold-call selling environment with frequent rejection may be stressful for you. On the other hand, you may become frustrated trying to help people who don't seem to put forth a good effort to help themselves. Balance is the key for you in this area.

Your mid-range score on the DETACHED/COMPASSIONATE scale indicates that you have a sensitivity to people, but you also find it natural to back away and make a more objective assessment when appropriate. This ability to adapt your response to others, depending on the situation, should be an asset in most work settings. Your even-handed approach toward people should engender respect for you as someone who is both fair and tough.

1.3 Typical Strengths

Jean-Pierre, shown below are strengths that are typical of people who score like you. Look for occupations that will allow you to highlight these strong points. The more you are able to use these strengths at work, the more likely your success and satisfaction. As mentioned earlier, you will need to check with someone who knows you well to confirm whether all items apply to you.

- Leadership oriented; naturally likes to influence others and be in charge.
- Diplomatic in relating to others.
- Self-reliant; confident in own abilities.
- Relies on logic more than emotions and enthusiasm.
- Strong task orientation; will drive toward getting results.
- Agreeable and gets along well with others.
- Likes to be thorough and precise; good with details.
- Strong drive to achieve and succeed; sees an opportunity and pursues it.
- Pioneering; enjoys taking a calculated risk.
- Calm and confident in the face of adversity.
- Quick minded; able to grasp abstract concepts.
- Clever in crafting solutions and responses to problems.

1.4 Typical Non-Strengths

Shown below are non-strengths that are typical of people who score like you. Improvement in these areas will enhance your performance. On the other hand, try to minimize your exposure in areas that are not your strong points. As mentioned earlier, you will need to check with someone who knows you well to confirm whether all items apply to you.

- Can be too pushy in trying to get results.
- May withhold true opinions.
- Forgets that success may, at times, require a team effort.
- Can come across as being too serious and unenthusiastic.
- Impatient; generally not a good listener.
- Can be stressed by conflict and does not like confrontation.
- Can have unreasonable expectations for self and others.
- Tends to be overly focused on personal goals and may sacrifice family for success.
- May take unnecessary risks.
- May have an attitude of superiority.

1.5 Critical Life Issues

This section provides insights that may be helpful in choosing a career. Your stress level, risk of debt, and handling of money can all be factors that influence your career choices. Being aware of these areas can help in decision making.

Stress

Your score on the STRESS scale indicates that you are presently experiencing some tension and stress in your life. Typical emotions you might be feeling vary from a simple feeling of uneasiness or discouragement over some temporary setback, such as unemployment, to a serious bout of depression.

Keep in mind that this instrument only provides a general indication of stress and is not suitable for diagnosing or prescribing treatment of psychological problems.

We encourage you to discuss your results with a family friend or a close confidant who could help you determine the depth of the issues and whether you need professional assistance to deal with them. If there is any doubt, we recommend you contact a professional who can provide you with a more thorough assessment and counseling and can assist you in dealing with these emotions.

Indebtedness

Your scores on the INDEBTEDNESS factor indicate that you have debt habits similar to the average person in our society. Our experience indicates that most people can pay off all consumer debt (everything but the mortgage) in less than five years, if they will make a commitment to do so.

Financial Management

You seem to be living by a sound financial plan. You probably control spending through a budget and you also have a regular savings program, as well as an investment plan to cover future contingencies.

Five Major General Interests Areas

Jean-Pierre, discovering your general interests is a critical step in the career planning process for one simple reason; people tend to excel when they are interested in the work they do! What may appear as a tedious task to one person may be easy and enjoyable to another who is naturally motivated toward that type of work. In general, work that interests you will be fun even when it involves tasks that, under other circumstances, would be difficult or boring.

Because of the very nature of your interests, your leisure pursuits may have influenced your General Interest scores. This means you will have to use some discretion when interpreting your General Interest section of the report.

For instance, if you enjoy physical fitness and sports, "Sports and Fitness" may surface as a high Career Group. However, since so few individuals become professional athletes, recognize the high score for what it likely is: something you will do for fun and leisure but not for a career.

On the other hand, Jean-Pierre, the more you can relate your work to areas that excite you, the more likely you are to be successful. One person who loved shooting a bow and arrow became the top sales person for a leading archery company by pursuing strong interests in archery and the outdoors. Likewise, many people develop successful businesses from their hobbies. Keep in mind, the more you enjoy what you are doing, the more likely you will be satisfied with your work, and the lower your work stress will be.

There are a number of ways to categorize career interest. This report uses 21 Career Interest Groups arrayed within five major Career Interest Areas. Those five major Career Interest Areas are displayed in the circle graph below, denoting how your Top 8 Career Interest Groups fall within them. If you have fewer than five major Career Interest Areas, it means that none of your top 8 Career Interest Groups fall within that area. More details on the breakdown within those five major areas can be found on the following pages.

Major Interest Areas and Career Groups

Five Major General Interests Areas

In the graphs below, if you have any areas showing 0%, it is because none of your Top 8 Career Interest Groups fall within those Major Interest Areas. However, you will still have interest data showing there.

2.1 Top Eight Career Groups

Three components, Activities, Occupations, and Educational Subjects, determine your Career Group group scores. These interests may be either work or leisure related, or they may be leisure or hobby avocations that you use as the basis for a career. Since the Career Groups are made up of several parts, you may find that one Activity group may be very important to you, but other components of the group may not be important to you. Consequently, your top interest is not high on the list of Career Groups. For example, you may enjoy math but not care for finance, so your score on the Career Groups, Computational/Financial, is not high.

2.3 Potential Occupations In Your Top Groups

Jean-Pierre, your top eight Career Groups described on the previous pages provide general definitions for broad groups of occupations in which you have the highest level of interest. Some of the descriptions and occupations in the groups may not appeal to you. That's fine; just make note of what you don't like and use it as a criterion to narrow your career interest. Of course, the information in the other sections of this report and the accompanying Career Direct® Next Steps and Career Direct® Resources sections will help you in this process.

TAKE NOTE OF YOUR LOWEST INTEREST GROUPS

It's important for you to take note of your four lowest interest groups. They are listed in the chart below. Areas of low scores can reveal some insights about your career interests.

Participate in activities are action-packed and might be considered daring and risky by the average person.

Manage a political campaign, hold public office, represent clients in court, inform and persuade others on political and social issues.

Conduct medical research, diagnose and/or treat diseases, health-related therapy or care, record-keeping.

Draw, use graphic software programs, design, paint, sculpt, create sound or sight effects, use photography, write poetry.

Note: Vocational/General Interests are not the same as skills. They reflect your motivation toward a career field but not your ability to work in that field. Most people have abilities that support their interests. If not, they usually try to develop their skills further or look at a secondary career area. For instance, someone who loves sports but does not have the skills to pursue an athletic career may decide to become an athletic trainer or a sports referee.

Skills Are Key Criteria for Choosing an Occupation

Skills Are Key Criteria for Choosing an Occupation

Jean-Pierre, an understanding of your skills will be important as you evaluate potential occupations. It is very critical that you match your work to career fields that utilize your best skills in order to gain the personal joy of doing something that comes naturally.

There are two key reasons for building on your natural strengths. First, doing so will help you to maximize your potential. Working in your natural strengths starts you at a higher baseline, helps you learn faster, and achieves more from the same amount of effort. For example, some people could practice singing for years but never have the ability to be successful as a singer because they simply lack the natural skills to excel.

Second, working in your natural strengths is just more fun. It's true that people experience less job stress when they are using skills with which they naturally excel. It also seems logical that you enjoy using these skills because they have been recognized, valued, and rewarded by others in the past. Your confidence will continue to grow as you use your natural skills, thus leading to even more success and joy in the future.

The bottom line is that you are most likely to excel when you use the skills that come naturally and bring joy in their use. Although you do need to be mindful of your weaknesses, it is generally unproductive to make them the primary focus for your work. In the area of skills, try to swim with the current, not against it.

Skills and Abilities

Note: This section's skill scores are from your self-assessment, not an achievement or an aptitude test. Research indicates that self-assessment can give an accurate overview of a person's skills.

3.1 Skills and Abilities: Top 4 Areas

You have a knack for building and repairing things because you are very mechanically inclined and likely have strong hand-eye coordination. As a result, you excel at building/repairing things, working with your hands, operating machines, or even designing structures. You may have talents for math or inventing that have not been fully developed and you could put these skills to use by learning to design new structures. To maximize your skills, seek occupations that allow you to work with new and specialized tools, machines, or design software, since experience and innovation will set you apart.

People who score high in this category are comfortable working with numbers and data. They are precise in calculations and thrive on opportunities to work with information that can be measured, validated, or explained by numerical data. Mathematical skills can be utilized in many different fields including accounting, engineering, economics, and computer science.

It is likely that you excel when coordinating the activities of others. You delegate tasks, motivate others to work collaboratively, and successfully meet deadlines because people readily respond to your guidance. You are adept at project management and can anticipate and then navigate each stage of work needed to complete a complex task. You manage a high degree of urgency with your ability to be flexible and make adjustments in the moment. By quickly assessing the situational options, you adapt to fast-paced, changing environments. To maximize the use of these skills, you should consider occupations that involve launching a business, supervising others, and/or overseeing operations.

If you excel in leadership, you likely have an elevated sense of initiative fueled by concern for or connection to others. You may be visionary or idealistic and willing to assert your influence over others. You could be positioned at the head of a group, or leading from among and working alongside the individuals you serve. Either way, you are respected for your integrity and dependability. Pursue opportunities that empower you to teach and mentor as a component of relationship building.

3.2 Skills and Abilities: Evaluate Your Skills

Carefully examine your highest-ranked skills and analyze the relationship among them. How much overlap is there? Is there a common theme to your skills? Do any of your skills relate more to areas that you would use as a hobby than as a basis for your occupation? If so, are there ways that these hobby skills could transfer to your work? The Action Plan that accompanies your report will guide you through these and other questions. Completing this analysis will be key to gaining full benefit from your report.

DEVELOP YOUR SKILLS

Exploiting your natural strengths does not in any way mean that training, education, hard work, and dedication are not required to further develop your skills. On the contrary, most successful people become so by working diligently at what they do. Think of the professional golfer who develops natural athletic skills by hitting hundreds of balls every day. Likewise, consider a pianist who spends hours practicing in order to fully develop natural music skills.

MINIMIZE YOUR EXPOSURE OF YOUR LOW-SCORING SKILLS

Jean-Pierre, as with interests, please take note of the skill areas in which you scored the lowest. They are the ones listed at the bottom of the chart on the Skills and Abilities graph. Areas with low scores can reveal some insights about your career interest. It could be that these are not natural strengths, or perhaps you never have had the opportunity to develop them. In either case, it would be best not to pursue occupations that require heavy use of your low-scoring skills, unless you pursue more training first.

YOUR LOWEST FOUR SKILL AREAS

Values Are Important To Career Decisions

Values Are Important To Career Decisions

Jean-Pierre, you can be in a career field that is a good match for your vocational interests, skills, and personality strengths and still experience job dissatisfaction and stress if your work does not match your values. For example, many people value working outdoors and will never feel totally comfortable working in the confines of a building. Others may need to know that they are helping people directly in their work and will not be satisfied working alone or with machines.

Many people think that they can be happy doing most anything if it makes them successful in the material sense. All too often, they find themselves unfulfilled and burned out after only a few years into their careers. Using values as a criteria for career choices can preclude much of the disappointment and career stress present in today's workplace. As you review your priorities to see if you are being consistent, compare them to the way you are actually operating. This three-part section on values is designed to help you define the priorities and values that will guide your life and work.

Expect your values to change; these are your priorities and you can change them any time you want. Most people will find that they do change some of their priorities as they age and as their family situations change. It is a good idea to save this report for future reference. A periodic review will enable you to make updates and see how well you are sticking with your priorities.

4.1 Values: Work Environment

Different people prefer or even require different kinds of environments in their workplace in order to function at their best. The kind of conditions they want when they go to work, such as in their physical surroundings, their schedules, or the workplace atmosphere, all contribute to their work environment. For example, some people can only thrive when their surroundings are very well-organized, while others may not be bothered by some degree of disorganization.

It is important for you to be able to identify the kind of environment you desire, or even need, in order to function to your greatest potential. Understanding this can help you as you evaluate various career opportunities that come your way.

YOUR PRIORITIES FOR THE 12 VALUES THAT RELATE TO WORK ENVIRONMENT

CONSIDER THE TOP 4 AS IMPORTANT CRITERIA FOR EVALUATING POTENTIAL OCCUPATIONS AND POSITIONS

1. Well-Organized

You value a highly structured and organized work environment. Seek careers in which the work environment promotes order, neatness, and systematic processes.

2. Harmony

You enjoy a harmonious, agreeable work environment. Look for occupations in which you can work with little confrontation, in harmony with your coworkers and boss and with a considerate team of individuals.

3. Challenge

You need the opportunity to solve tough problems and work make-or-break issues. Look for difficult assignments and obstacles to overcome. Controversy is not a problem, because you enjoy restoring order where there was chaos.

4. Travel

Look for occupations in which you are able to travel and see different parts of the world. You enjoy meeting new people, taking frequent trips, and having responsibilities away from the office.

4.2 Values: Work Outcome

Although most people have a number of expected rewards from their work, it is important to decide what is most important. For instance, more education and higher income typically go together, but beyond a certain level continuing education may not correlate with a higher income. Likewise, having a leadership position does not always enhance one's security. Whether we think about it or not, most of us have to make tough choices in this area.

It's very important that you recognize that your priorities are an individual matter. Allowing someone else to exert too much influence over work values is one of the biggest mistakes people make in choosing a career field. This is your opportunity to think through this critical area and make sure you know what is really important to you.

YOUR PRIORITIES FOR THE 8 OUTCOME VALUES THAT YOU EXPECT FROM YOUR WORK

THESE OUTCOMES ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT TO YOU

1. High Income

You value being highly rewarded financially for your efforts at work. To feel successful in your work, you believe a high-income level is a necessary factor.

2. Leadership

You feel comfortable in positions that include responsibility for people and resources. You are comfortable taking charge, telling others what to do, and making decisions for the group. Your work should include the opportunity to lead a team toward common goals.

3. Career Progression

You are interested in occupations that offer a well-defined progression of career positions. You enjoy moving up in the organization by increasing your responsibility and authority at work. Look for job settings that offer a chance to grow and develop as a professional.

4. Security

You prefer to have the assurance that you have a job that will be around for a long period of time. Some career opportunities still have a measure of security; however, keep in mind that they are on the decline. Job security is now much more dependent on your ability to continually develop your skills to meet the changing workplace.

4.3 Values: Life Values

This area is important to career planning because many people find it difficult to align the way they live and work with their life values. The fast pace of life, the strains of financial overcommitment, and the complexity of life in this time cause many to feel like it's all they can do just to hang on each day.

Experience shows, however, that people who thoughtfully decide on a life purpose and then make career choices that contribute to that goal have a unique peace and sense of fulfillment about their work. Your top four items that relate to life purpose are listed below.

YOU PRIORITIZED 9 VALUES THAT RELATE TO LIFE PURPOSE

LISTED BELOW ARE YOUR TOP 4 LIFE PRIORITIES

1. Family

Your family has a high value for you and you want to be able to care for them whenever they need you. You consider it important to be available and involved in their activities. Having a lot of quality time with your family is important to you and should be an consideration to the occupational choices you make.

2. Faith

You have indicated that your life mission involves serving God in everything you do. It will be very important for you to see how your work is contributing to that goal. Remember that all occupations offer the opportunity to serve Him. Kindness and a commitment to excellence can be an attractive light for others in the workplace.

3. Integrity

Honesty in every area of life is a key value for you. You make every effort to keep your commitments and live by the highest standard of fairness and truth. To be sure you will not be asked to compromise your integrity, carefully evaluate the work environment and the leadership, as well as products and services of any organization you are considering for employment.

4. Money

You believe accumulating wealth is an essential part of your happiness. You probably value a lifestyle in which you are able to have frequent vacations, live in a nice home, and drive nice automobiles, or perhaps you want to be a very generous provider to others and to charitable causes you support.

FIND THE RIGHT BALANCE IN YOUR VALUES

No one is perfect; Superman and Wonder Woman do not exist, and you will never be able to do everything to the level you would like. Everyone must work out a balance in life. By considering your priorities, you will be able to find a comfortable balance in the use of your time, energy, and financial resources. Referring to your priority lists will help you to meet your stated life purpose values.

EXPECT YOUR VALUES TO CHANGE

These are your priorities and you can change them any time you want. Most people will find that they do change some of their priorities as they age and their family situations change. It is a good idea to save this report for future reference. A periodic review will enable you to make update and see how well you are sticking with your priorities.

WHAT DO I DO NOW?

Compare the stages of your career development to driving cross-country on a family vacation. There are two distinct stages. Stage one consists of conducting all the necessary research and planning to make the vacation enjoyable. Stage two consists of actually getting into the car, backing out of the driveway, and starting out.

Reading through your CAREER DIRECT report is comparable to studying a road atlas in the first stage of planning the trip. It offers you a broad overview of the general directions to your destination, along with some alternative routes to get you there. However, just reading the report will not solve your career dilemma any more than simply reading a road map will actually get you to your vacation destination.

You now find yourself at stage two. It is time for you to climb into the driver's seat and begin your career journey. Your first step is to assimilate your information into plans and decisions that will get you started. To assist you in this key step, we have provided the Action Plan, a guide to interpreting and acting on what you have learned about your pattern for work. It is extremely important that you process through it completely. I will help you to match your pattern with various occupations and educational training programs.

Above all else, don't forget that the basic goal in career planning is to match your talents and interests to the requirements of your work. In doing so, you will have the highest likelihood of reaching your destination and career that fits you.

 - Make sure your chosen career has that four-out-of-four design fit (Personality, Interests, Skills and Values).
 - Make a decision that honors and respects your individuality.
 - You can easily get off track if you choose a job solely or primarily for one of these reasons:
