

Neil Trautman

When it comes to education I have always went back and forth to numerous different paths that I want to take. First and foremost, getting my Registered Nurse was always part of the plan. Obtaining my RN has turned out to be the hardest mountain in my education journey. But finally, I can see the finish line and now I am reevaluating my educational goals beyond obtaining my RN. What I do know is that I want to go on to obtain my Associates degree then shortly after that obtain a Baccaulaureate degree.

These two degrees will be the "easier" part of my journey because I will be able to take my time and work schooling around my work/life schedule versus adjusting my work/life schedule around my schooling. But ultimately my end goal when time and personal life allows is to obtain my Master's degree then go forward to become a Nurse Practioner.
