My highest level of nursing degree that I want to get is to get my masters. To be honest I do not think I will ever stop trying to educate myself in nursing. I have always loved nursing and love being educated and learning. Learning never stops and it shouldn't. I do not think you should ever stop learning. We learn something new every day and that's the greatest gift. Being educated is a privilege and learning is a privilege.

I love nursing. I went into this to help and care for others. I love talking and learning about the patients I help. There is no greater satisfaction than helping someone and changing their whole hospital stay. Having patients thank me and tell me that I have changed their stay or their outlook in life in general it keeps me wanting to be a better nurse and wanting to further my education in nursing.
